

Biography

Kevin Sedivec

Current Position

Extension Rangeland Specialist – NDSU Extension Service, Range Professor – School of Natural Resource Sciences, and Interim Director - Central Grasslands Research and Extension Center

- Started working for NDSU in 1989
- Took over as Interim Director of Central Grasslands Research and Extension Center in October 2016
- Located on the Main Campus in Fargo in the School of Natural Resource Sciences and Research Center near Streeter

Education

- B.S in Zoology – Wildlife Management
- M.S. in Animal and Range Sciences
- Ph.D. in Animal and Range Sciences from North Dakota State University in 1994

Started working on reclamation and remediation of lands disturbed by energy development in 2013, including Extension programs related to reclamation of lands impacted by energy developed, including pipelines, gathering lines, access roads, and well pads. We have also conducted research trials studying compaction remediation of well pads and access roads, and remediation of brine spill impacted lands.